

French

1) The most important thing that students can do is ensure that the grammar, especially verb tenses, that they have been taught is SECURE. Choose your grammar website:

<https://www.language-gym.com/#!/verb-trainer;>

<http://www.languagesonline.org.uk/Hotpotatoes/Index.htm;>

<https://www.laits.utexas.edu/tex/gr/index.html> and use it to practise those verbs!

2) Vocabulary is obviously useful too. Start this memrise course for AS vocabulary, OMITTING UNITS 1, 7, 8, 9. It is not the new spec for the A level, but the vocab here is a good start.

German

1) Visit the dw.de website and choose a podcast to listen too. I recommend Lang Sam gesprochene Nachrichten (slowly spoken news), but there are others available at various levels of German ability on a variety of topics (e.g. Jojo sucht sein Glück).

2) List at least twice a week during the holiday.

3) Use languagesonline.org.uk to revise all the verb tenses over the holiday.

4) Watch the films 'Goodbye Lenin' and 'das Leben der Anderen' with subtitles. You will be able to study one of these as part of your A level course and the choice will be yours (collectively).
