

ENGLISH LITERATURE

Minimum entry grades: a grade 6 in English Literature at GCSE.

“English Literature is a glorious inheritance which is open to all – there are no barriers, no coupons, no restrictions. In the English language there are great riches and treasures...” Winston Churchill

Why study it?

The power of words is incalculable. Studying English Literature is to study language, history, culture and identity all at the same time.

You will leave the course accomplished at analysis and appreciating the deeper meaning of words when viewed through their cultural lens.

This subject is for you if...

- You enjoy reading literature!
- You enjoy forming your opinions and discussing them with your peers.
- You are confident at analysing text.
- You have the ability to write fluent and coherent essays.

Where can it lead you?

English Literature is a flexible and adaptable subject that opens up a wide range of degree courses and career choices.

English students possess skills in written and spoken communication, working independently and thinking critically, all of which are highly valued by employers.